New York Hardware Manufacturer Found a Friend in Chicago and Got Some-thing of What He Wanted - Helpiens Where that Friend Could Not Help Him. The action of the Eagle Pencil Company in requesting Representative Amos J. Cummings to call the attention of Congress to the out-rageous renduct of the Chicago Fair officials was generally approved by business men whom THE SUN reporter saw yesterday, and it would not be surprising if members of the House and Senate from all the Eastern States should receive similar letters from their constiluents. Although few of the merchants seen yesterday were willing to say that they would write to their Congressmen, it is very probable that there will be petitions from representative houses in many trades. This was one reason assigned by merchants for refusing permission to quote them. They feared it

The agent of the Philadelphia exhibitors, C. A. Waidron, who is stationed in Chicago, has been striving to secure some definite understanding about space. The outcome of his work will be revealed in a letter to the Exhibitors' Association to be read at a special meeting in the committee rooms on next Thursday afternoon.

The report is eagerly awaited. The protest of the local manufacturers that the Western exhibitors are being favored at the expense of the Eastern firms with their greater interests is schood by many manufacturers.

The upholstorers in particular, who proposed to make a combined exhibit, are greatly disappointed over the offer of 5,000 square feet made to their committee at the Manufacturers' Club in this city in last November. The conditions imposed that certain money should be spent upon the exhibit seemed to them an insult, and no combined exhibit will be made.

SHE TOSSED A PENNY TO DECIDE How Miss McCarthy Came to Listen to Mr. Brady's Bad Advice.

ELECTRIC POWER ON THE CANALS.

Gov. Flower Enthusiastically in Payor of the Troiley or Some Other System, ALBANY, Jan. 13 .- The Governor and Mrs. Flower, with Mrs. Schley, went to Watertown this afternoon to spend Sunday. The Governor will return on Monday. Before leaving for his country home Gov. Flower gave THE Bux reporter his views on the project of equipping the canals with an electric trolley system.

"I believe that the running of canal boats by some form of electric motor is as certain to come, and come soon, as I am that I am sitting here in the State executive chamber as the Governor of the Empire State. Why, it is easy enough, and not so costly as many suppose. I had an engineer experienced in electrical matters give me some estimates, and I am satissled that the State can equip the Eric Canal from Bustalo to Albany with an electric power plant by which we can furnish boatmen the necessary power to propel their boats at a cost cone reason assigned by merchants for retusing permission to quote them. They feared it might injure their trade in the West to say anything as individuals that would reflect upon the Fair, but they thought there would surely be united action of the trades most injured by the ignorance, procrastination, and favoritism displayed by the Fair officials.

Another instance of the unfair methods of these gentiemen was learned by the reporter yesierday. As the information in this case comes from the beneficiarr, even the most akeptical will be convinced. On Monday morning Manville, who says he had become convinced that his wife was not a proper person to care for their eight-year-old daughter, Christena, went to the primary school in North Seventh street in the afternoon and took the child away. Then Mrs. Manville went to Justice Goetting and told him that her husband had often threatened to take Christena to the slums in New York, and that she thought he had done so. The husband was arraigned in court on Thursday. He said he was a hard-working man, and once had a happy home, but it had been broken up by Bartlett. He said he did not take his daughter to the slums, and promised to produce her in court yesterday. He did so, and Bartlett also was present.

Before the case was called Agent Mayer of the Society for the Prevention of Cruelty to Children conversed with the child. She told Mayer that her mother and Bartlett often acted in such a manner that she had to cover her face. When the case was called Manville pointed to Bartlett, and Justice Goetting called him to the bar. Bartlett denied that he was more than on speaking terms with Mrs. Manville. "I've seen you with your arms around my wife and kissing a standard bright her." him that her husband had often threatened to

"That's not so," said Manville. "I've seen you with your arms around my wife and kissing and hugging her."

Manville told Justice Goetting that he was willing to live with his wife if she would get rid of the boarder. She agreed, and Bartiett was advised to find another boarding house. Mrs. Manville clasped her daughter in her arms and carried her out of court. On the sidewalk she denounced her husband and declared she would never live with him again. He tried to get back the girl, but Mrs. Manville bundled Christena under her shawl and ran away. Bartiett followed her.

Mrs. Manville is a comely brunette about 30 years old. Her husband is employed in the Continental Iron Works, and Bartiett is foreman at Lowell M Palmer's coal pockets at the foot of North Eighth street.

A Sentence in Violation of the Code. SCHENECTADY, Jan. 13.—Novel habeas corpus proceedings will be held before Judge Cutler to-morrow. Frederick Textor, charged with petit larceny in having stolen several gross of cough drops from a New York Central Railroad freight car, was adjudged guilty in the police court, and Police Justice Eisenmenger imposed a sentence of fifty days' imprisonment or the defendant to pay a fine of $25. Counsellor Halsey, who appeared for Textor, procured a writ of habeas corpus to-day on the grounds that the sentence is in the disjunctive, and the terms of the imprisonment in excess of the amount of the fine, both of which are in violation of the code. Section 718. Code of Criminal Procedure, reads that "A judgment that the defendant pay a fine may also direct that he be imprisoned until the fine be satisfied, specifying the extent of the imprisonment, which cannot exceed one day for every dollar of the fine." It is quite likely that the code is violated almost daily in nearly every police court in the State. It is the first case of the kind contested in Schenectady. imposed a sentence of fifty days' imprisor

THE TRIAL OF THE VESUVIUS. Considerable Preliminary Work in Rangia

the Guns Already Accomplished. PORT ROYAL & C., Jan. 13.-Since the arrival of the pneumatic cruiser Vesuvius last week several signal stations, surmounted by flags, on both shores of the river have been set up. These will be occupied by observers during the firing which will precede the coming trial. The firing was begun during this week, and will continue at intervals for nearly ten days. The guns have been tested with blank charges and seem to be under perfect control. On Monday two "plugs" were fired from the guns while the vessel lay moored to her pier. A large crowd witnessed the discharge with disappointment. These plugs are not dummy projectiles, but weighted pieces of Iron and wood, which were used formerly in experiments with the guns, and have been carried in the loading cylinders of the vessel for a long time. They were fired on Monday to rid the gun room of their presence and incidentally to test some calculations of Monday to rid the gun room of their presence and incidentally to test some calculations of Lieut. Schroeder as to the proper valve setting for a safe minimum range.

The ranging of the guns is the most important feature of the work to be done. In the powder gun the ranging and the marking of the sight bar is done at the Government proving ground. This completed, the gun goes out into service, and its part in a battle is determined by the gunner who aims it. Thereaders of the pneumatic guns are impelled by compressed air. It is impracticable to raise or lower the air pressure in the reservoirs between shots, and the air is kept at a constant pressure. It is admitted to the base of the shell after a passage through a nest of valves. The function of these valves is to limit the amount of air acting on the projectile, and thus regulate the range. The setting of the valve is made through an indicator, and the present work of the Vesuvius was tried by a Board of officers in May, 1841, the guns had not been ranged, and in her efforts to hit a target, at long range, she was like a rifleman with no sights on his rifle.

In beginning the ranging shots will be fired first for a maximum range. When the shell strikes the water three observers at accurately determined stations will fix the point of fall with theodolites. As the position of the shell has gone with the corresponding setting of the valve. It is claimed by those interested in the pneumatic guns that a shell will always go to the same place with the same valve setting. From the maximum range shells will be formed, and shells may be thrown with decreasing losses of air pressure down to the lowest safe range, the fall of each shot being determined in the same way. With this data a curve of valve settings may be formed, and shells may be thrown to any point within the limits of range as soon as the distance of the target or enemy is noted.

The ranging will be completed during the coming week, and the date of the trials will depend on the time of arrival of the Phil

to the Comptroller, The New York and New Jersey Bridge Comission, created by the Legislature to locate a bridge over the North River between New York city and New Jersey, made a statement yesterday to the public and to the Senate and House of Representatives of the United States Commission, in answer to criticisms of the city Comptroller and Chamberlain. The statement recites the fact that the Commission was created independent of the bridge corporation, and has the sole power of deter-mining the location for the New York end of the bridge and its approaches. Three members of the Commission, A. H. Green, F. K. Hain, and C. M. Vall, were named by the Legislature. The others, Evan Thomas and Isldor Straus, were named, one each, by the Governor of the State and the Mayor of this divernor of the State and the Mayor of this city respectively.

The act prohibits the taking or entering upon any park or the surface of any street or avonue in this city. The corporation which may build the bridge has no voice in the selection of the location, and is forbidden to lay any railroad, but shall maintain the bridge as a common thoroughfare. After consulting engineers and bridge builders the neighborhood of Seventieth street was determined upon as the location of the New York end.

The Commission received yesterday a letter from the West Side Taxpayers Association, signed by J. J. Garbutt and Frank Waters, stating that the association approved the construction of the bridge.

His Wife and Her Mother Londed Up Rie Traps and Sent Them Of, BRIDGEPORT, Jan. 13.-Dr. Andrew Gilrer had a surprise on last Wednesday afternoon, arranged for him by his wife and mother-inlaw. He had just had luncheon and was sit-ting in Booth's drug shop. There was a sound of wheels and then a truck appeared and stop-ped in front of the door. Dr. Gilroy looked unconcernedly at the truck and then opened his mouth and his eyes wide. The truck was piled high with furniture, the furniture of a doctor's office, books, chairs, deaks. It was from the Doctor's own office, the front room of his mother-in-law's house.

"Hey. Doctor," said the truckman, "What shall I do with your traps?"
"Where did you get 'em?" said the Doctor. "Mrs. Dunn sent for me, and she and your wife told me to take 'em away. There's an officer up to the house."

When the doctor came to think of it he was not so much astonished, although he did not expect to be thrust out into the cold world so suddenly. The domestic storm has been brew-ing for a long time. He married Miss Dunn several years ago, and they went to live with his wife's mother and father. While the doctor was a good enough husband in some ways his wife's mother and father. While the doctor was a good enough husband in some ways and had a growing practice, he was a very had husband in that he preferred liquor and the society of barrooms to the less exciting joys of his own hearth. His young wife didn't like this, but his mother-in-law positively hated it, and grew to entertain toward her son-in-law feelings of strong antipathy. When Mr. Dunn died he left his fortune of $100,000 to his wife during her lifetime, and she, having the pursa strings, assumed a threatening attitude toward her hibbling sop-in-law, and stirred her daughter to a less forgiving spirit.

Several times within the few last months mother-in-law and wife have warned the Doctor that he would be put out in the cold if he did not reform. He has always repented and begged off, but also has always sinned again. On Monday Mrs. Dunn and Mrs. Gilroy had a truck come, and put his traps on it and sent them to him with a message that he was not wanted at their house any more. After he had sent the truck to a storage firm he went up to the house. A peace officer was in charge.

"You may go into your office," said the man. but don't try to see your wife or child or disturb any of the family."

So Dr. Gilroy stood around his empty office for a while, and then went down to the Atlantic Hotel, where he now lives. As he and his wife are good Catholics, there will be no divorce. But he will have to show a complete change of life before any proposition from him will be listened to by his wife and motherin-law, who say that they never want to set eyes on him again. Dr. Gilroy is a member of the staff of city physicians, and no young physician.

THE GLEASON-SANFORD FIGHT.

Gleason Ordered to Show Cause Wby He

Should Not Surrender the Office. The Queens County Grand Jury has subpernaed more than fifty witnesses in reference to the Long Island City Mayoralty muddle The principal object, it is said, is to obtain evidence on which to indict City Clerk Thomas P. Burke, who disappeared after counting Mayor. Gleason in and issuing his cartificate of election. Nothing has been learned of Burke's whereabouts since his disappearance.

It is further asserted that an effort will be made to indict the thirty-three inspectors of election who caused the whole muddle by misspelling the name of Horatio S. Sanford, the Jeffersonian candidate for Mayor, in the eleven districts in which they acted.

Judge Bartlett, in the Supreme Court. Brooklyn, yesterday issued an order requiring Mayor Gleason to show cause on Jan. Is why a writ of mandamus should not be issued compelling him to turn over the books, papers, and other appurtenances of the office of Mayor to Horatio S. Sanford. Accompanying Judge Bartlett's order is this memorandum:

"In view of the apparent repeal of that portion of the Revised Statutes which provided a summary proceeding to obtain the books and papers. I deem it proper to grant this order to show cause, so as to enable the applicant to present the question whether a mandamus will not lie in such a case."

Mr. Montfort, counsel for Mr. Sanford, thinks that he has found a decision by Judge Strong which shows that his client has a right to a mandamus.

Two versions of an alleged anonymous letter said to have been received by Mayor Gleason were sent out from his office yesterday morning. The letter was signed "An Enemy." In one version the writer accuses the Mayor of making himself too officious in the investigation into the dynamite explosion, and threatens to take his life. The second version, said to be the genuine one, accuses the Mayor of making himself too officious generally, and orders him to resign under penalty of death. election who caused the whole muddle by misspelling the name of Horatio S. SET PIRE TO A TENEMENT

Incendiary Starts an Early Morning Blaze in Harlem,

It surely will great comfort bring,
And clean each dirty place or thing;
For what will make a black crow white,
Will make whate'er is dingy bright."

An incendiary kindled a fire at 5 o'clock yesterday morning under the cellar stairs of the double tenement at 2,056 First avenue. The flames spread to a closet, and from it they ate their way to the roof through the shaft which connects the closets on every floor. Frederick Schunek, who has a bakery at 2.054 First avenue, discovered the fire. He also found that his neighbor, John Bergman, who keeps a candy and newspaper store in 2,056, had gone off after papers and had locked Mrs. Bergoff after papers and had locked Mrs. Bergman and their two-year-old child in the store. Schunck kicked open the door and released the excited woman. Then he rung an alarm from the box at 105th street.

The firemen were so iong in responding that he rung the alarm again. It had not worked the first time, but the second attempt brought the firemen. In the mean time the tenants of the burning house had scrambled out by the fire escapes and no one was injured, although all were very much excited. Five of the seven families in the house lost from $100 to $300 each by the fire, while the house was damaged $1,000 worth.

This is the fourth fire in the tenement within a year. Two of the lires occurred during November. Capt. Pickett and Fire Marshal Mitchell are trying their best to discover who it is that is anxious to destroy the tenement.

Sole Manufacturers. Chicago, St. Louis, New York, Boston Philadelphia, Baitimore, New Orleans Ran Francisco, Portland, Ma., Portland Ore., Pittsburgh and Milwaukes.

His Clerk, Wood, Arrested for Conveying Jewelry Out of the Eighth Avenue Shop. Frederick G. Wood, a young Englishman, was arrested on Thursday afternoon by De-tectives Doran and Grady of Inspector Mc-Laughlin's staff. Wood was a clerk for Henry McAleenan, the pawnbroker at 104 Eighth avenue, and in charge of the jewelry department. Two days after he began his duties in the store he began to steal, so he tells Inspec-tor McLaughlin. Three weeks ago the proprietor discovered that several articles of jewelry were missing from his safe. He complained to Inspector McLaughlin, and Doran and Grady spent two weeks shadowing Doran and Grady spent two weeks shadowing Wood. On Thursday evening they caught him trying to dispose of a pair of diamond earrings to Otto Lucks at 14 Myrtle avenue, Brooklyn. Wood had a furnished room at 40 Lawrence street. Brooklyn, and the detectives found some of the stolen property there. Mr. Mc-Aleenan thinks that Wood has stolen $4,000 or $5,000 worth of jewelry irom him. Wood turned overa lot of pawn tickets, and a great deal of the property was recovered.
